QUAKER CITY FIRE.

The Damage Amounts to Over Three Hundred Thousand.

PHILADELPHIA, March 24.—Chestnut street, west of Fifteenth, was visited by a most destructive fire which, for a time, threatened to prove as disastrous as the fire of Feb. 3, when the 7-story Haseltine building and that of the Bar tist Publication society were destroyed

The fire broke out in the 6-story building of the Thackera Manufacturing company, manufacturers and dealers in fancy gas fixtures and candelabra, at 1524-26 Chestnat street. The firm employs about 200 hands, who were at work at the time. The fire originated in the front cellar and was not assovered until it had eaten it's way through the first floor.

An alarm was sounded, but before the engines arrived the entire front part of the building was on fire. Meanwhile a majority of the workmen made their e-cape. About a dozen or more, however, were hemmed in and had to be taken from the windows by the firemen.

The rear part was but slightly damaged. The loss on the building will amount to about $150.000 The Thackera company's stock, machinery and patterns were valued at about $250,000 These are a total loss, but are protected by an insurance of about $150,000. Other losses amount to about $25,000.

Laws Passed by the Pressu General Assembly Are Counted on For About a Million-Relying on This the Appropriations Were Not Scaled Down as They Would Have Been.

COLUMBUS, O., March 24.—Chairman Boxwell of the finance committee introduced the general appropriation bill in the house for the fiscal year ending Nov. 15 and the first quarter of the next fiscal year ending Feb. 15 The those made two years ago, and are based upon a material increase of the revenues of the state from the laws Dow liquor tax will bring the state about $500,000. The excise tax provided by the Goodale law will bring the state about $400,000. Other laws which it is thought will be enacted will bring the state a total revenue in addition to that of last year of about $1,000,000. The committee has not shaved down the appropriations, as would have been required had the above laws not been enacted. It is hoped that the increased revenues wift enable the state to pay the deficiency created in previous years before the next legislature is elected.

Telegraph Operator Who Caused a Wrock

Gives Himself Up. James Gallagher, formerly a telegraph operator for the Wabash road at Springfield, Ills., has given himself up to the Chicago police, claiming that he is haunted by the ghosts of victims of a wreck at Lexington, Mo., which, he ays, he was instrumental in causing.

SAYS HE'S HAUNTED.

"When I saw the awful mistake I had made," he said, "I ran away and succeeded in making my escape. Since then have wandered all over the country. but the scene of that wrecked train, mixed with the cries of the injured and dying, haunted me, and even at the present time I see it all. My conscience accused me of being the cause of the loss of so many lives, and it has almost driv-en me insane. Lately, however, they have found me out and have been following me wherever I go, and for that eason I have come to give myself up. "

"Who are following you and where are they now?" asked the sergeant.
"Oh, it's the dead ones, their friends and others, and they are all around me. See, here they come now," and with a shrick the man suddenly jumped from his chair and pointed at the wall. "See. they are coming, two by two, and are going'to avenge their brothers and sisters and friends. Save me, save me! I made a mistake in giving orders to the ougmeer, and there goes his train, vrocked. I hear the injured screaming.

i must go. ` As the man finished he almost sank to the floor with exhaustion. Sorgeant Kelly, now convinced that he was inane, had him locked up in a cell and then notified the city physiciau.

Information was received from Springfield that Gallagher is the son of a widow living there. About five years ago, when a mere boy, he began work as a telegraph operator for the Wabash road at Springfield Junction, and afterward worked at Decator and other points on the line in this state. Finally he was given a steady position at Lexington, Mo., and while there a wreck occurred on the road, which resulted in the death of several persons and the destruction of number of valuable race horses. was badly out about the head and is in a

GROWTH OF OUR NAVY.

Striking Contrast Between the Old Ships and the New.

THE GIANT BATTLESHIP IOWA.

Now She Compares With the Penusylvanin, the Pride of the Navy Sizty Years

On March 28 will be languaged at Cramps' shippardt in Philadelphia the first class battleship Iowa, the fourth of her kind to be added to our navy. About 60 years ago there slid from the ways near where the lowa now rests a gallant ship that for a time was queen of the waves. This was the old ship of the line Pennsylvania. She was the finest example of a wooden warship ever built by this government, and at the time of her knuching it was expected that she would continue to be an imposing member of our ficet for at least half a cen-

But what changes there have been in naval warfare since those days, and what a ridiculous figure the old Pennsylvania would out now if she should engage one of our modern floating righting monsters of the deep—the Iowa, for instance!

Nevertheless she was an imposing sight when she first threw open her ports and spread all her canvas to the breeze. No nation on the globe then possessed a craft that she could not have met in equal combat. She was of wood Unroughout, with a water line length of 210 feet, a beam of 58 feet, and her keel would touch bottom in less than 25 feet of water. Her sides were of good, solid oak, ranging in thickness from 18 inches at her spar deck to 32 inches at her water line, and they were proof against any guns affoat at the distance of a mile.

From out these wooden walls peered the mouths of 120 muzzle loading, smoothbore gans, ranged one above the other in three banks, which made her look like a vast floating checkerboard. Sixteen of these were S much shell guns, the beaviest of the day, and the others were 32 pounder carronades.

Even England bad at that time no ship that could have lived long under such a broadside as could have been ponred our from those guns.

Above her decks her majumast towered heavenward 210 feet and on this and her two other sticks she could spread a cloud of snowy canvas of over two acros in extent. She must have been a sight to gladden the eye of a sailor as, with every stitch, from mainsail to to gallant. stud usails set and drawing, she bowled along in a ten knot breeze, her sides s-swell as if with conscious dignity and for bluff bows breaking the waves in banghiy disdain.

Such was the pride of our navy in white squadron of 1595, the battleship Iowa.

She will stretch her long white built dong the water for $60 feet, a thing of steel and from massive, yet swift enough o run round and round thould Penn ylrania were she affoat today and sailing at her best gait. She is a pouderous mass of 11,410 tons, yet sho will draw one foot less water than the Ponusylcaula with only 3,500 tons displacement. Instead of the towering mosts there are he two smokestacks and the steel turret which holds up the fighting top. In place of the great expanse of canvas there is hidden, deep down in the hold, two monster triple expansion steam engines, each revolving a ponderous propeller, either one of which can send the great ship plowing through the water at rate never equaled by the Pennsylania, even when she was soudding unler baro poles before a hurricane. Then compare the batteries of the two hips. Where the Pennsylvania had 120 mus the Iowa has but 18. Only 18 gubs. igt of what awful power! Compared with them the old smoothbores are but opguns. Just reflect what fearful enrines of death are held in leash behind those glistening steel sides! Four of them in the two large turrets, peering out through 15 inch walls of hardened teel, are 12 inch breechloading rifles, iring a combined mass of 3,400 pounds of tempered steel as against the 2,200 ound cast from broadside of the older raft. Every that these great guns beich such 1,700 pounds of nower are burned. Then look at those four smaller turcts. In each of them are two eightinch rifler, which can discharge shells f 259 penuls each, capable of penetrating eight inches of steel after they have ped for two miles over the water. The gight inch shell gams on the old ship had a possible range of one mile, and at close quarters could hurl their 65 pound projectiles with sufficient force to penetrate five-eighths of an inch of mild seel, about chough to deut the Iowa's umur.

Imagine a whole fleet of old time vooden ships like the Pennsylvania enaging even one modern battleship like he Iowa. Supposing the Iowa should allow them to come within fighting range. That means about 200 yards. It would be merely a matter of allowaure, for from any one of the lowa's guns could be builed a mass of steel that would search out and sink a wooden ship while she was still miles away and hull down by the horizon.

But what would happen if the wooden shins were allowed to come alongside and peoper away with first one broadside and then another? Why, the Iowa could calmly stand and take it, for the shot would rattle as harmlessly off her armored sides as if they had been but peas falling on a rin pan. Then, when the time came for the slaughter, the Iowa could let loose an explosive shell from one of her six ponuders, and one Ago-The Submarine Torpedo Boats of | of the attacking force would be instantly reduced to a mass of burning splinters and taugled rigging.

If another method should be chosen, from any one of the Iowa's five tubes a torpedo could be discharged, carrying 120 pounds of explosive gun cotton and speeding on its errand of destruction at the rate of 30 miles an hour. No vessel, past or present, could stand in the path of that awful missile and survive the shock. A wooden ship would vanish at its touch like a soap bubble pricked with

UNITED STATES BATTLESHIP IOWA.

But if the rown's captain wanted to save powder and will destroy the opposing fleet it could be done as easily. From his position in the coming tower he could send the word down into the engine rooms, "Stand by to ram." This order would be followed by an instant activity below decks. The massive machinery would begin to move, slowly at first, but quicker and quicker until, driven by an energy of 11,000 horse-112 revolutions a minute, forcing the to believe that he was a fraud. great ship forward at a speed of 16 knots Tace 5 Section canno from Memphis, an hour. To stand in her way means to Mo. 3 solder 2 people that Schrader take a blow of 130,000 tons from her murderous ram, before which the toughest armor must break and crumple like paper. What chance would the wooden claimed as his home: ships stand of resisting such an onslaught? In the days of the old Pennsylvania sea fighting was a picturesque kind of warfare, with its hand to-hand struggles on decks slippery with blood. Today it has become a grim contest of science where death has a long arm. Where formerly the captain stood in the midst of his officers, inspiring the crew, to brave and valorous deeds, now he goes into action shehered in the steel citadel. of his conning tower, where speaking tubes and electric bells enable him to direct the fighting of the ship. WEATHER BY MAIL

Forecasts Are To Be Bulletined Upon Letter-

The plan of disseminating the knowledge gleaned by the signal service departments relative to the weather by means of the back stamps of letters bas been adopted by the postoffice officials at Washington, and after July 1 will be in general use throughout the country.

The idea has been under consideration at Washington for some time, but its use has been fully decided upon. About six months ago the signal service authorities at Cincinnati conceived the plan that the foreeast might with profit to the public be bulletined on mail matter, and after deliberation the matter was referred to the head of the department at Washington. The local stations throughout the country were apprised of the scheme and the advantage was readily recognized. Postmastere were conferred with and the latter, without exception, saw its usefulness and made application for the ser vice in their office.

The forecasts are made up throughout the country at 11 a.m., Washington time, and as soon as possible thereafter are sent through the districts they cover. At the Columbus office a copy will at once be sent to the stamping departments and all mail that is backstamped will have the forecast on it day clerical force during the absence up to 11 p.m. After that hour the space will be left racant until the next day. The back stamp is not used on any mail except letters, hence postal cards, papers and miscellaneous mail will not contain the forecast.

The stamp will be similar to the usual back tamp, only sufficiently large to contain an additional word immediately under the date, stating the salient features of the forecast such as "Rain." "Warmer," Threatening," or whatever may be necessary.

With the forecasts of the weather furnished daily by the newspapers and lisp lay of signals by the postodice denartment and a plan now under consideration to prognosticate the conditions by a system of flags on railway

Weeks, on west | The alarm from 24 did not sound to the Center street, where a most enjoyable public as in fixing the bell Frank social was held.

The social was a jolly affair, to put it n the terms of the ladies themselves. Mrs. J. H. Criswell sang several solos, thought that the department had not with Miss Anna Wyatt, piano accompanist. Mrs. Else also sang a couple of solos and was obliged to repeat them when Cooper Post G. A. R. came from the first alarm and were surprised at their hall to the Weeks home. The Grand Army met Monday evening, and that the alarm from 24 was the work after the meeting marched to the home of Comrade Weeks to attend the social. is that if the fellow can be caught urs. Eise sang "Marching Through Georgia," and all of the G. A. R. mempers joined in the chorus.

Refreshments were served and a colection was afterwards taken up. The proceeds of this collection are to go toward relieving the soldiers in need, or their wives, widows and children. Those was no fire, and an endeavor will be present contributed quite liberally, and a neat sum was raised

MANY ARRESTS,

Marshal Blain Counts Them Up to Satisfe Himself on the Result.

Since April 1st, 1895, up to March 23 896, there have been 304 arrests in the city where charges have been made against the prisoners. There were tifty others whose names were slated, but nothing placed against them and possi- toric debate of 1868. The pictures are bly that many more who were locked up for safe , keeping and no account made of their arrest.

This is an increase over the arrests EVERYBODY IS nade the year previous. Of the above number many bave served workhouse sentences. The marshal will make an annual record of the arrests, and is now footing them up. Of course these ar rests do not include the tramps that have been housed during the winter.

MUST COME TO TIME.

Farmers WhoSell Impure Food Will Hav To Answer for It.

Health Officer Blain left this after ioon for the country to either make a settlement or put John Ruth under arrest. The health officer says that of late there has been too much so-called country produce sold in the city that is impure, and that he is going to make an example of some of the farmers who have been selling this sort of stuff.

It was reported to him today that Ruth had brought lard to the city and sold it for pure lard, while the fact is it was very impure and unfit for use, and menace to the health of those who

Three families purchased this land, and all three made a report to the bealth officer. Fifteen gallons were dis posed of in all, and after consulting with Mayor Nichols, president of the board of health and other members, the otheer decided to commence action in

He stated to the Sran that if Mr Ruth was not willing to make a settlement that there was nothing left to do but for him to place the man under ar rest and bring him to this city for trial He also mentioned other cases of the same kind, the identity of the seller or dealer being unknown, that needed the same kind of attention, and said that he proposed giving it the investigation it needed.

FALSE FIRE ALARM.

Some Miscreant Gives the Departmen Some Trouble.

The alarm of fire turned in Monday night was a false one, and was sent of by some miscreant, liest from box 21 at the corner of Lee and Silver street. Bishop had placed a plug so that the bell would not sound, and had forgotten to remove it. Officer Barnhart received the alarm and turned in another from box 63. The department had responded to the second alarm. It is very likely of some drunken individual. The fact there will be trouble for him. It is the intention of the chief of the fire department, mayor and police force to make an example of the lirst person caught sending in a false alarm. This was the first one that has eccurred where the sender was aware that there made to learn his identity. Lincoln's Courtship and Marriage, McClure's Magazine for March con tains an account of Lincoln's courtship al display of Easter millinery March and marriage, based on the testimony of intimate friends of his still living completely disproves a shameful story accepted by some of the best biographers, that Lincoln once subjected the lady who afterwards became his wife to the unspeakable himiliation of absenting himself, without warning o explanation, on an occasion appointed Also Pittson Egg and Chestnut, for their marriage. Along with this is given an account of a debate, with passages from a little known speech of Lincoln's, wherein he had Douglas for Hocking Coal an opponent and completely discomfit ed him, twenty years before the hisabundant and apposite.

SECOND NOTICE .. OF OUR.

Great Low Priced Challenge Sale.

N advance of the season these low prices are received with astonishment. It has never been known-a deliberate sacrifice of profit in the face of a coming busy season. We are on the threshold of our spring trade, when everybody will need our goods at regular prices, notwithstanding we shall sell thousands at half price.

Our Reason For And Why We Do It

We started out with 1896 to make a fifty per cent. gain on every month's business. In January and February we succeeded. The bad March weather has been against us this month, but we are determined to achieve our aim, if low prices will loosen purse strings. Will we succeed? Turn to the throng that came to the challenge sale today for an answer. And today it was hardly begun. The full tide of challenge sale success will not set in until The people, having partaken of the feast, will begin to talk about it.

lays Marsh Would Not Pay the Louis Fare and the Train Was Stopped-The Divorce of Commings Against Comming Settled—Court Votes

In the court of common pleas, in the ease of Elias D. Marsh against The Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St Louis Railway company, the defendant todat made answer

The defendant, admitting its corporate character and that April 9, 1894, it was engaged in the business of transporting pas-engers and baggage over the lines between Martel and Caledo' nia, says that it was not so engaged except on those trains which were scheduled on its time cards to stop at those laces, and that the distance between hose stations was only four miles The defendant admits that April 9 1894 the plaintiff boarded one of its passenger trains at or near Martel, but says that while he did so the train was in motion and that he did so without any invitation from the defendant or its servants in charge of said train and without their knowledge or consent and when he mounted the train was not at a village platform

The defendant further says that the rain was not scheduled to stop at Unitel to take on passenger-, that it did not stop at Martel that day to take on passengers nor did it carry passengers thereon from Martel to any other station on its line, that all of its time cards advised the public that the train did not stop there, which the plaintiff knew or could have known by the ev ercise of ordinar, care

I'nder the rules and regulations of the defendant existing on that day. and long previous thereto, neither tickets nor fare were accepted on that train from Martel to any place and that when the conducter learned that the plaintiff had gotten aboard he inform ed him that he could not carry him as a passenger thereon from Maitel and that under the regulations of the company he could only permit him to ride apon the train upon the payment of fare as a passenger from Galion which is the nearest point east of Caledonia ron: which passengers were carried The plaintiff refused to comply with the regulations of the defendant and declined the payment of the regular and usual fare for carrying passengers from Galion to Caledonia, whereupon the train was stopped and the plaintiff alighted therefrom

The defendant admits that the plaintiff tendered its conductor fifteen cents, the fare from Martel to Caledonia, which the conductor refused to accept, but the defendant denies each and every other allegation of the pe-
